Excerpt from The Guidon, Vol. 3: Oct;-Nov,, 1906 There was no doubt in the minds of these people as to whether the Grail of the legend was the true cup. They accepted the statement without question, and told the story over and over again. The Holy Grail was the cup Christ used the last time He appeared as a man among His fellows. Later He was raised by His great sacrifice to a plane far above theirs. But when He used this cup, He sat at meat with them; John whom He loved lay on His bosom; all of the disciples talked freely to Him, and He taught the most spiritual truths. Then, too, He instituted forever a memorial of His death, and they drank from this cup the wine which symbolized His blood shed for their sins. Through the whole meal, they had a feeling that they were about to lose Him, and they treasured up in memory every word and look. The legends of the Grail were mingled with those of the loving-cup used by the knights. They used to pass a cup of wine from one to another at their feasts as a pledge of comradeship, and the people had a tender feeling for this custom also. It was little wonder then that these Christians who needed tangible things in their religion came to look upon the Grail as a sacred thing. The early tradition of the cup is that it was brought to Glastonbury by Joseph of Arimathea. Many people were blessed by its presence, but wickedness so ruled the land that it was taken away to heaven. When scandal broke out in the...
