Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 71: October 7, 1909 His desire for more knowledge was gratified abundantly in so much that he was given to know more respecting the creations of God, the universe, than any other mortal man of his time. He was the pioneer in the teaching of correct astronomy, monuments of which science as he taught it to the Egyptians remain to honor his memory even unto this day. When he was driven by the famine which prevailed throughout Chaldea, to take up his abode in Egypt, the Lord said unto him: Abraham, I show these things unto thee before ye go into Egypt, that ye may declare all these words. Thus Abraham gained the knowledge which he so ably disseminated among the people where he sojourned. He received it through faith and obedience according to his righteous desires, and his integrity in the service of the Master.
